

Anthony Gross, DC

Director of Clinical Operations, Sonospine, LLC

Dr. Gross is a Board-Certified Chiropractic Sports Physician with over 20 years of clinical experience. This gives him unique insight into the total continuum of patient care at Sonospine, including non-surgical conservative therapies, minimally-invasive procedures in addition to innovative and emerging options for treatment. At Sonospine, Dr. Gross can take the time to evaluate and educate patients in order to give them a clear picture of the options that can get them back to a full and active life.

While in private practice in metro Phoenix for more than 12 years, his clinics served as the “Official Chiropractor” of the Phoenix Coyotes NHL team. While in private practice, he also served in various professional state and national leadership positions, including President of the Arizona Association of Chiropractic. This was motivated by his belief that healthcare providers should be involved in the legislative process as stewards for patients to improve access to quality health care options.

In 2012, Dr. Gross left private practice and joined a multidisciplinary spine group that soon after became the world’s largest provider of outpatient minimally invasive spine surgery with surgery centers in multiple states. As the Consulting Physician in Arizona, he worked directly with patients and a large multidisciplinary medical team to determine if spine surgery or other treatment options/referrals were more appropriate.

In 2014, he was instrumental in the development of a first of its kind post-surgical spine rehabilitation certificate program in partnership with the American Chiropractic Association. This course was designed to educate chiropractors and other healthcare providers in the multidisciplinary and evidence-based delivery of perioperative care for patients with debilitating spine conditions.

Dr. Gross has also received additional training and credentials in MRI of the spine through the University at Buffalo Jacobs School of Medicine & Biomedical Sciences, is a Certified Chiropractic Sports Physician (CCSP) and is also a Fellow of the International Academy of Medical Acupuncture (FIAMA).

Dr. Gross joined our dynamic and talented leadership team at Sonospine in early 2020. As we expand our capacity to serve, we are excited to have his level of skill, leadership experience and knowledge to provide compassionate care and guidance for patients suffering from spine related issues.
